Analysis:

The measure increases the maximum short term transitional leave from 90 days to 180 days for Department of Corrections (DOC) inmates not subject to certain specified sentences. DOC notes that there is no permanent bed capacity and the Department has maximized the use of emergency beds.

The increase to short term transitional leave as a result of this measure will first result in the reduction of emergency beds at a cost per day rate of $23.33. DOC that in addition to this reduction in the use of emergency beds there will be an increase in the cost to community corrections departments for local control and probation at a cost per day of $11.69. The numbers in the table above represent the savings to DOC for the reduction of emergency beds and the special payments to counties.

DOC notes that the expansion of this program would result in moving timelines up for sentence reviews of all eligible inmates. Currently, this review is scheduled 6 months in advance of the projected release date. DOC notes that adjusting the transitional leave to 180 days would require an additional permanent full-time Operations and Policy Analyst position to assist with that effort. The estimated cost of this position is $195,969 General Fund in 2017-19.
