

Hello my name is John Paul DeJoria III and I am writing to ask you to please consider looking at this subject objectively. This is a great country built on freedom. A freedom that lets both sides have discussions and debates about bills like this one. There are times where there issues are black and white and there are times that issues are in a gray area where opposing sides both have good points and legitimate facts to back up their arguments. This would be one of those cases where there are good points to both sides and we need to decide whether or not we are going to ignore the truths about one side over the other. If both sides have truth then we need to make a decision that allows us to keep our freedom and our right to choose what we feel is best for our children. We should continue these debates and discussions and the pursuit of the ultimate truth, but what we should not do is ignore the fact that there are many children that have been seriously injured and even lost their lives because of vaccines. There are many medically proven cases that ended up in billions of dollars paid by courts to compensate parents for the injury or loss of their child. If we know that passing this will definitely cause more injuries and deaths to children, then why aren't parents able to make the choice whether or not their children are to be injected with needles full of potentially toxic ingredients. Why aren't parents able to have any say over what gets injected into their children's bodies? Why is our freedom and right to choose in jeopardy?

Sincerely,
John Paul
