- Ten-year property tax exemption on structural improvements to a property.
  - Eligible projects include proposed construction, additions to existing structures, or conversion of existing non-residential property to housing.
- Adopting jurisdictions determine the public benefits required for a property to receive the exemption.
  - Example: affordable housing and transit-oriented development.
- Adoption of a local program is subject to the concurrence of at least 51% of taxing jurisdictions.
- Each qualifying application is approved through ordinance or resolution.
- The exemption applies to residential improvement and qualifying commercial improvements in mixed use structures.
  - The value of the exemption cannot exceed 100% of the real market value.

City of Portland Implementation – PCC 3.103

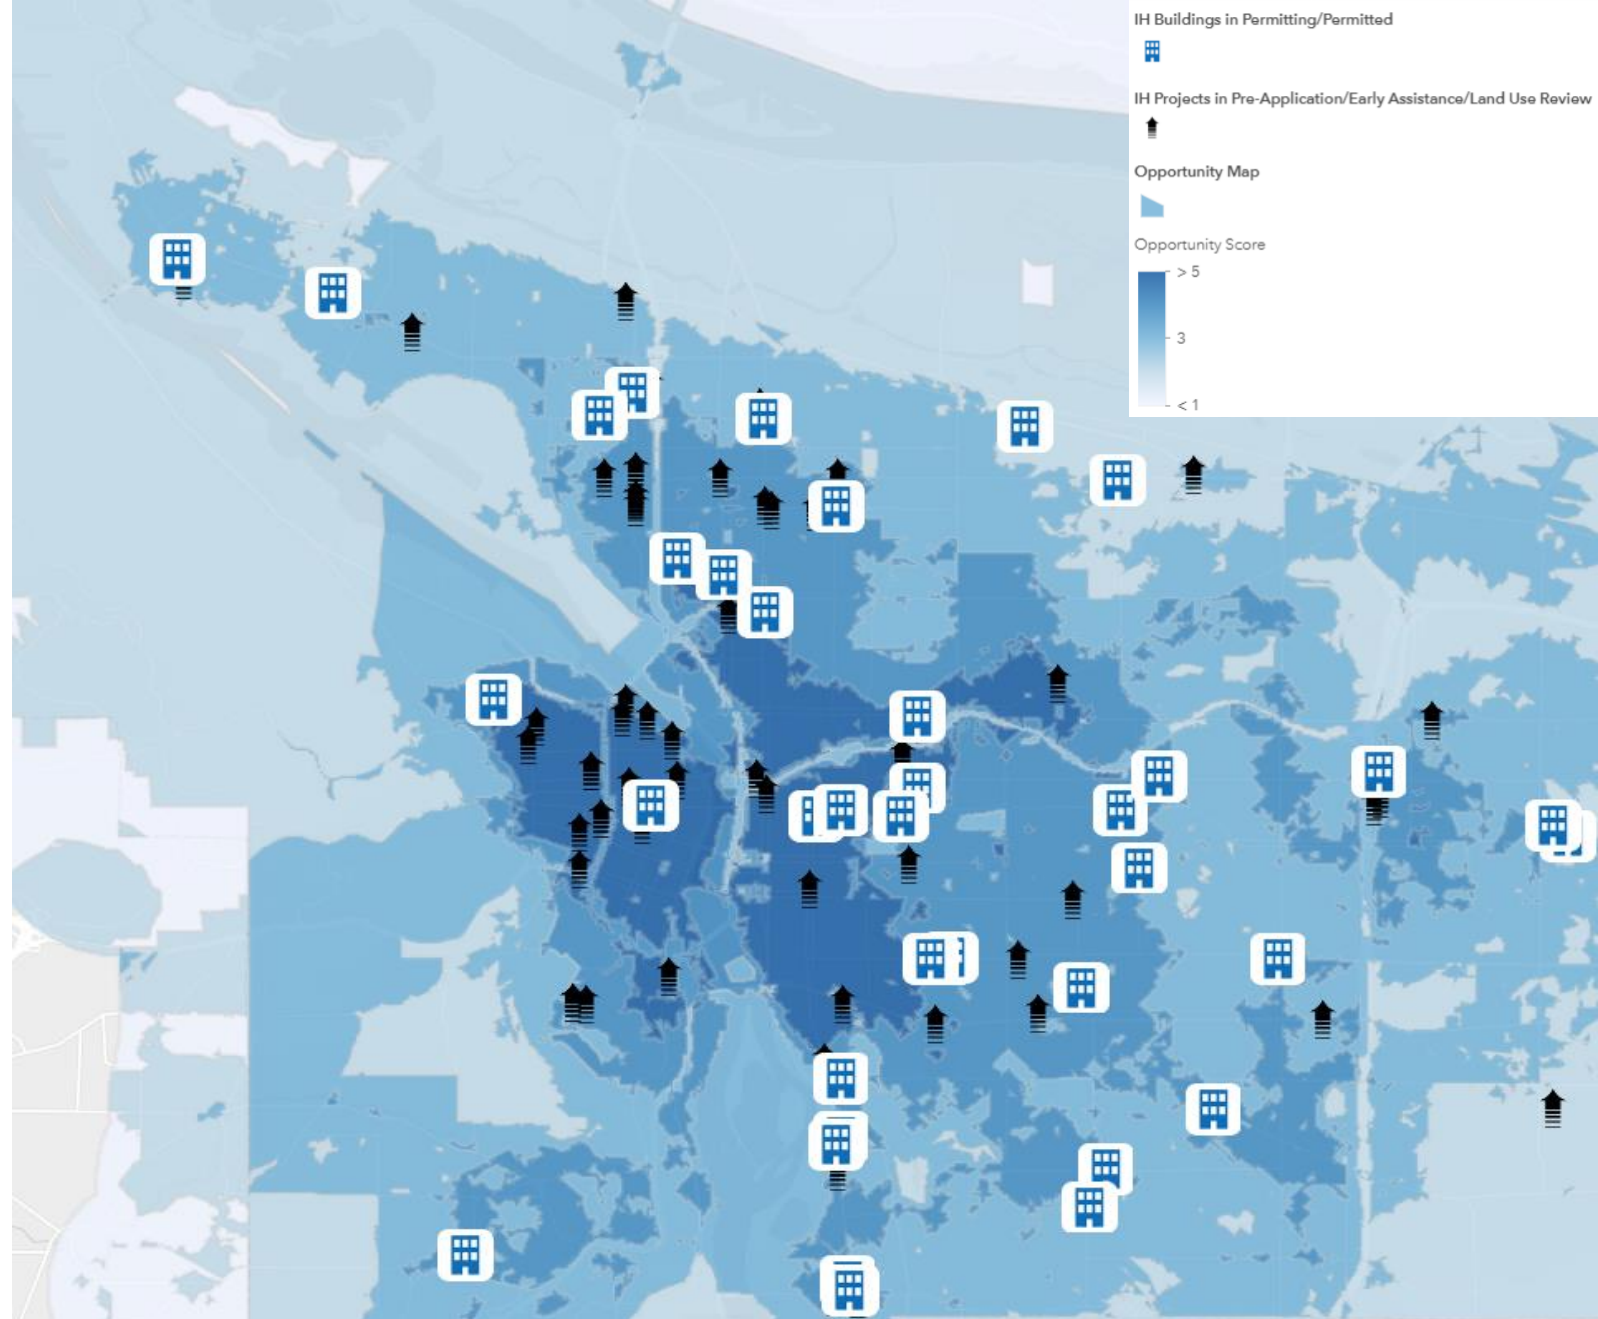

- Portland first adopted a multi-family tax exemption program in 1975.
- Past program goals have included transit-oriented development, urban development within the central city, and inclusion of affordable units.
- Most recently, the program has been used to incentivize affordable units in market-rate developments.
- As of February 2017, the program supports creation of affordable units as part of the City's Inclusionary Housing program.

Inclusionary Housing in Portland

Since 2017, all new projects with 20 or more units must include affordable housing.

The multiple-unit limited tax exemption (MULTE) program is one of the financial incentives afforded to developments.

400 IH units have been built or are in permitting and will be affordable at 60-80% area median family income for 99 years.
