A BILL FOR AN ACT

Relating to state financial administration.

Whereas community colleges are critical providers of career and technical education, workforce training and short-term certificates; and

Whereas community colleges serve as a bridge between high schools and a four-year degree; and

Whereas community colleges provide GED programs and are major partners in offering college-level courses to high school students; and

Whereas community colleges serve the most underrepresented and first-generation students of any sector of Oregon post-secondary education; and

Whereas declining state support of community colleges has resulted in cuts to services to students even as they shoulder more of the cost burden through higher tuition; and

Whereas community colleges educate and train the skilled workforce that local businesses and job seekers need to thrive; now, therefore,
