

No on the Senate bill to cap and tax and tax and tax.

I thought the law said that tax on gasoline was dedicated to highways and infrastructure.

Republicans estimate it will cost a family of four over $600/year. The democrats were unable to give a number. They will basically saying vote the bill in and then we will give you a number. My experience with government budget estimates is to double it and then some. So, I believe it will cost the average Oregonian about $500/person/year.

For what? To try and change the climate? Pardon my English, 'but it ain't gonna happen'.

I have been following climate warming, cooling since about 1970. The vast majority of figures/forecasts from climate 'experts' have been wrong.

Now, the state wants to spend 2 billion a year to fight it... In my humble opinion, it is a tax revenue scheme.

IF the Democrats want to 'fight' climate change and reduce CO2, then plant more trees. Increase the sustainable yield harvest in Oregon forests from 60% to 90%. Fir trees are one of the best trees to 'capture' Carbon.

Paraphrasing Einstein, the government is doing the same thing with this bill and is expecting a different result... It is truly insanity.

This bill should go away.
